

The newly dubbed Westin Aruba Resort ends the year with a gala party for their guests

It was a fabulous night for those that ended their year with the Westin. Their beautiful black and white party featured the music of Ernesto Molina, jazz violinist of Venezuela and top Aruban band Tsunami. Ernesto gave a thrilling performance on his stylishly white violin, appropriately dressed in baroque fashion.

Guests at the newly flagged Westin Aruba Resort enjoyed an incredible fireworks display over the water and a champagne toast to see in 2007, and then partied until the wee hours, even the little ones. Noted comedian Sky Sands, who is appearing at the Comix Café in the Cabaret Royale was seen “making the scene” with his wife Andrea, who made it to Aruba specifically to spend the holiday with him.

Every aspect of the night reflected the “Westin touch” as revelers said good-bye to the old year. The new resort has had a very busy two weeks since they raised the flag on December 20th, starting their tenure in Aruba with the two busiest and most demanding weeks of the year. Manager Rob Smith and his seasoned crew were more than up to the task, and passed the test with “flying colors,” making it a memorable New Year’s for all their guests!
